HAC and partners consider rural housing in the time of Covid-19.
In partnership with the Rural Assembly, HAC presents two virtual conversations on the state of rural housing in the coronavirus era. The first conversation, “What was the rural housing landscape like before COVID-19 and where are we now?,” took place on June 9 and featured a panel of rural housing experts. The second conversation will be held on June 16, titled “Has the government’s response been adequate?” It will examine what more needs to be done to help rural housing respond to the pandemic. For more information and to register, visit the Rural Assembly’s website.

Changes enacted to Paycheck Protection Plan.
The Paycheck Protection Program Flexibility Act, signed into law on June 5, increases flexibility for PPP loans. These loans are available through June 30 from SBA-approved lenders to help small businesses and their employees weather the coronavirus pandemic. The new law extends several deadlines and time periods, including the time for businesses to disburse the PPP funds they borrow. It also reduces the amount that must be spent on payroll. More information about the program is available from the SBA and the Treasury Department.

Research examines characteristics, expertise and needs of rural community organizations.
Local and regional rural-serving organizations shape and strengthen the fabric of their communities. But what expertise do they have – and what expertise do they need? Based on the findings from a survey of over 350 rural-serving organizations in 45 states, a research brief from HAC and the Aspen Institute Community Strategies Group offers information on the inner workings of rural-serving organizations. Ground Truth from Rural Practitioners includes recommendations for building these groups’ capacity. This brief is the third product of a partnership between HAC and CSG; previously published reports addressed the limitations of rural media coverage and the need for better data on rural communities.

New goals set for Federal Home Loan Banks.
To promote affordable homeownership, the Federal Housing Finance Administration sets goals for single-family mortgage purchases by the 11 regional FHLBs. FHFA is finalizing changes it proposed in 2018. The new rule, which takes effect in 2021, replaces four separate goals with one, adds a new goal for small institutions, and makes other changes. Lawsuit claims state farmworker housing rules inadequate for coronavirus protection.
Familias Unidas por la Justicia, a farmworkers’ labor union, has filed suit over the Washington state government’s emergency housing rules for farmworkers coming to the area with H-2A visas. The union argues the rules do not provide adequate protection against the spread of the coronavirus in grower-provided housing. There are fears around the country that illnesses among farmworkers may increase as summer advances, Politico has reported. The Centers for Disease Control and U.S. Department of Labor have issued guidance for protecting farmworkers against infection, but employers are not obligated to follow it.

RuralSTAT. The unemployment rate outside metropolitan areas skyrocketed to 13.7% in April – up from 4.9% in March. While the unemployment caused by COVID-19 is unprecedented and unpredictable, such high jobless rates signal the potential for serious concerns across the housing spectrum. USDA makes one temporary change to help use Section 502 direct funds.
An Unnumbered Letter dated June 4, 2020 authorizes USDA RD to treat the purchase of a home from an owner with an existing Section 502 direct loan as if it were a new loan rather than an assumption of an existing loan. This is the only such step taken so far this year to help use all program funds before the fiscal year ends on September 30; last year and in previous years the agency issued several temporary authorizations.

May 28 HAC News revised to include Section 502 direct.
USDA has extended to June 30 its moratorium on foreclosure and eviction of homeowners with mortgages under the Section 502 direct and guarantee programs. The email version of the May 28 HAC News referred to the guarantee program but not to Section 502 direct.
